Blind pilot flies from London to Sydney

A blind British pilot landed his tiny aircraft in Sydney on Monday to complete a record-breaking flight halfway around the world. Miles Hilton-Barber left London on March 7 and flew nearly 22,000 kilometres to Australia. His aim was to raise money for charity. He did not fly solo, but was accompanied by a sighted co-pilot who helped Hilton-Barber by telling him what figures were on the navigation instruments. The 58-year-old aviator said: "It's the fulfillment of an amazing dream. I've been waiting to do this flight for about four years." He added: "I've wanted to be a pilot since I was a kid. Now I'm totally blind but I've had the privilege of flying more than halfway around the world.” He described the most important thing for him: "The big deal is not me doing this, it’s raising funds," he said.

Hilton-Barber has been blind for 25 years. He hopes his trip will raise over two million dollars for the charity Seeing is Believing, which works to cut preventable blindness in developing countries. His intercontinental flight is not the first adventure he has been on. In 1999 he competed in the "Toughest Foot-race on Earth" a run across the Sahara Desert. He then went on to take part in the "Coldest Marathon on Earth", across Siberia. To add to his feats, he has climbed Mt Kilimanjaro and Mt Blanc, Africa and Europe's highest mountains. He also set the Malaysian Grand Prix lap record for a blind driver in a 200 kilometre-per-hour Lotus. His achievements are an inspiration to blind and sighted people everywhere. Hilton-Barber is living proof that anything is possible, and that where there’s a will, there’s a way.
WARM-UPS

1. BEING BLIND: Walk around the class and talk to other students about what it is / would be like to be blind. Change partners often. After you finish, sit with your original partner(s) and share what you heard.

2. CHAT: In pairs / groups, decide which of these topics or words from the article are most interesting and which are most boring.

   pilots / aircraft / record-breaking flights / charity / figures / amazing dreams / blindness / developing countries / adventures / Sahara Desert / Grand Prix / will

Have a chat about the topics you liked. For more conversation, change topics and partners frequently.

3. ADVENTURE: With your partner(s), rank the following adventures – which would you most / least like to do together?

   • fly around the world
   • walk across the Sahara Desert
   • run across Siberia
   • climb Mount Kilimanjaro
   • race a Formula One racing car
   • study English for 10 hours a day, every day for two years

4. CHARITY: Brainstorm ideas you could do to raise money for charity. Talk about them with your partner(s). Which one(s) will you start planning? How much money would you like to raise?

5. CHARITIES: With your partner(s), rank the following charities. Give a score of 1 (= I wouldn’t give them money) to 10 (= I’d donate my life savings).

   • Seeing is Believing
   • World Wildlife Fund
   • Amnesty International
   • International Red Cross/Crescent
   • Other _________________________
   • Save the Rainforests
   • Stop Whaling
   • Save the Children
   • Help the Aged
   • Other _________________________

6. QUICK DEBATE: Have this quick debate with your partner(s). Students A think being blind is a major disability; students B think blind people live normal lives. Change partners and topics every two minutes.

7. BLIND: Spend one minute writing down all of the different words you associate with the word “blind”. Share your words with your partner(s) and talk about them. Together, put the words into different categories.
