THE ARTICLE

From <https://breakingnewsenglish.com/2602/260212-first-date-text.html>

First dates can be romantic and the start of a beautiful relationship. However, many people wonder when the best time is to contact their partner after that first meeting. Scientists studied the best time to send a text after a first date. Researchers at Leuphana University in Germany asked 500 people about this matter and published their findings in the Journal of Social and Personal Relationships. The researchers found the best time to text is the morning after the date. This shows the other person you are happy and are interested in a second date. They said waiting too long could be a mistake because it sends the wrong message that you are not interested.

The study involved asking the test participants to imagine having an enjoyable first date at a nice Italian restaurant. They then had to rate how much they wanted a second meeting, depending on when they received a text from their date. They had to decide whether being texted the next morning or two days later made them feel happiest. The researchers said a follow-up text the morning after the date made people want to take the relationship further. The Psychology Today website agreed and wrote: "A next-morning text shows you're interested and had a good time." The study looked at texting — the more modern method of communication. It did not look into traditional phone calls.

WARM-UPS

1. FIRST DATES: Students walk around the class and talk to other students about first dates. Change partners often and share your findings.

2. CHAT: In pairs / groups, talk about these topics or words from the article. What will the article say about them? What can you say about these words and your life?

first dates / romantic / relationships / first meeting / partner / text / a second date / study / imagine / Italian restaurant / feeling happiest / the morning after / phone calls

Have a chat about the topics you liked. Change topics and partners frequently.

3. NO PHONES: Students A strongly believe phones are a no-no on a first date; Students B strongly believe they're OK. Change partners again and talk about your conversations.

4. NO TEXTING: Why should you not text in these situations? Have you texted in these situations? Complete this table with your partner(s). Change partners often and share what you wrote.

| | Why? | You |
|-------------------|------|-----|
| On a first date | | |
| While driving | | |
| In class | | |
| At a funeral | | |
| When you're angry | | |
| In bed | | |

5. RELATIONSHIP: Spend one minute writing down all of the different words you associate with the word "relationship". Share your words with your partner(s) and talk about them. Together, put the words into different categories.

6. GOING ON A DATE: Rank these with your partner. Put the best places to go on a date at the top. Change partners often and share your rankings.

- An Italian restaurant
- A beach
- The cinema
- A shopping mall
- Karaoke

First dates can be romantic and the start of a beautiful relationship. However, many people wonder when the best time is to contact their partner after that first meeting. Scientists studied the best time to send a text after a first date. Researchers at Leuphana University in Germany asked 500 people about this matter and published their findings in the Journal of Social and Personal Relationships. The researchers found the best time to text is the morning after the date. This shows the other person you are happy and are interested in a second date. They said waiting too long could be a mistake because it sends the wrong message that you are not interested. The study involved asking the test participants to imagine having an enjoyable first date at a nice Italian restaurant. They then had to rate how much they wanted a second meeting, depending on when they received a text from their date. They had to decide whether being texted the next morning or two days later made them feel happiest. The researchers said a follow-up text the morning after the date made people want to take the relationship further. The Psychology Today website agreed and wrote: "A next-morning text shows you're interested and had a good time." The study looked at texting - the more modern method of communication. It did not look into traditional phone calls.

A text is better than a phone call the morning after a romantic date. Discuss.

HOMEWORK

1. VOCABULARY EXTENSION: Choose several of the words from the text. Use a dictionary or Google's search field (or another search engine) to build up more associations / collocations of each word.

2. INTERNET: Search the Internet and find out more about this news story. Share what you discover with your partner(s) in the next lesson.

3. FIRST DATES: Make a poster about first dates. Show your work to your classmates in the next lesson. Did you all have similar things?

4. NO TEXTING: Write a magazine article about banning texting during first dates. Include imaginary interviews with people who are for and against this.

Read what you wrote to your classmates in the next lesson. Write down any new words and expressions you hear from your partner(s).

5. WHAT HAPPENED NEXT? Write a newspaper article about the next stage in this news story. Read what you wrote to your classmates in the next lesson. Give each other feedback on your articles.

6. LETTER: Write a letter to an expert on first dates. Ask him/her three questions about them. Give him/her three of your ideas on how to make a first date successful. Read your letter to your partner(s) in your next lesson. Your partner(s) will answer your questions.
